The conference was organized in response to the food crises of the early 1970s that primarily affected the Sahelian countries of Africa. It resolved that "an International Fund for Agricultural Development should be established immediately to finance agricultural development projects primarily for food production in the developing countries." One of the most important insights emerging from the conference was that the causes of food insecurity and famine were not so much failures in food	Since it was created in 1977, IFAD has focused exclusively on rural poverty reduction, working with poor rural populations in developing countries to eliminate poverty, hunger and malnutrition; raise their productivity and incomes; and improve the quality of their lives. The Fund has designed and implemented projects in very different natural, socio-economic and cultural environments. Many IFAD-supported projects and programmes have been in remote areas, and have targeted some of the poorest and most deprived segments of the rural population.

Empretec also encourages the formation of mutually beneficial business linkages among SMEs as well as with transnational corporations (TNCs). As a result, it contributes to the development of a dynamic private sector and an open entrepreneurial culture. Therefore, it is a vital complement to effective macroeconomic policies and enabling legal and regulatory framework. The name Empretec – the Spanish acronym for emprendedores (entrepreneurs) and tecnología (technology) – has been first introduced in Argentina in 1988. Since its inception, the Empretec programme has been initiated in 32 countries, assisting more than 180,000 entrepreneurs through local	focus on their roles as entrepreneurs and challenges them to critically examine their personal strengths and weaknesses. Previously funded projects include the development of an interactive peace education Internet tool for teachers in Chechnya, and the development of a crisis-mapping platform used in Egypt to map harassment against women. Organizations and individuals can apply. Applications must be for new projects, as the grant does not support projects already in progress. Letters of Inquiry (LOI) are accepted and expected. An LOI Form is available online. In addition, applicants must provide a CV (no more than 3 pages long) for each project team member. Applicants that move on to Phase 2 are contacted by the Foundation by the end of November. At that time, a full application will be required. Proposals that include matching funds will be given preference. The Grant Application Form must also be completed and is available online. All correspondence must be in English. A call for proposals for this program will be posted early in 2014. Strategic Partnering Initiative (SPI) funds projects that facilitate mutual
